the "group"

THE CANADIAN GROUP OF PAINTERS has passed its twentieth year.

When it was formed it was the most adventurous group of artists in Canada. It was the first society to advocate and encourage freer forms of expression in the arts. Young painters whose work was considered too radical by the older societies were invited to exhibit with us.

Our members have distinguished themselves in all fields of art; in travelling exhibitions across Canada, in exhibitions abroad, war records, art education, Guggenheim fellowships and in the increasing interest in the arts throughout Canada they have played a leading part.

For a society which has received no governmental assistance . . . which has had to do all its own financing . . . this has been no mean achievement.

Today we can no longer claim the distinction of being the only society to exhibit examples of non-objective and other phases of contemporary art — other societies have thrown their doors wide open to all schools of modern painting. Our society brings together paintings from all over Canada and to the best of our ability we select those which we believe to be representative of the most significant work being produced in this country.
